BONNEY.

Records of this branch of the Bonney family offer no proof of the parentage of Benjamin—said by two of his grandchildren to have been Truman Benjamin—Bonney, though undoubtedly he descended from Thomas Bonney who came to this country in the ship "Hercules" in 1634 and settled at Duxbury. The same names persist for five or six generations. The Bonney Genealogy, C. L. Bonney, is complete for three generations, but the fourth, in which we would look for Benjamin's father is not carried on in all the name. Miss Mary Bonney, a grand daughter of Benjamin, gave what help she could, the most important item being that she remembered hearing her father, Bela Bonney, tell of a visit to cousins Levi Bonney, Luke Bonney and others at Eaton and Hamilton, Madison Co. N. Y. These members of the family are able to trace their lines and belong to the Chesterfield, Mass., branch. Benjamin Bonney lived at Log City, now Eaton, but the records are of little help as he seems to have been in no difficulties and as there were two Benjamin Bonneys the records of property do not identify, nor do those of the churches.

It would seem most probable that the descent came through Job [3], born 1713, who in 1733 married Ruth Bisbee: Job was the son of James [2] who in 1695 married Abigail Bishop, and James was the son of Thomas [1] and his second wife, Mary Hunt.

Benjamin went to Second Milo after the death of his wife, Betsey, in 1825.

Commencing with Benjamin Bonney as the first of whom we have positive record there is a clear line to the connection with the Gardiner family.

CONKLING.

Ananias Conkling and his brother John emigrated probably as early as 1635 and not later than 1637; the records of Salem, Mass., speak of them as "glass men" and in 1638 the town made a gift and grant to Ananias of one acre for a house lot and on Oct. 11th, 1639 he received another acre; he had 10 acres besides. John received a grant of 5 acres in Sept., 1640. The two men made window glass and bottles. Ananias joined the church in Salem in 1639. Freeman in 1642. John removed to Southold, L. GARDINER.

Lion Gardiner was the first of the name in America His own account taken from his Bible says that "In the year of our Lord 1635, July the 10th, came I, Lion Gardiner and Mary my wife, from Woerden a town in Holland where my wife was borne, being the daughter of one Dierke Willemson deurcant; her mother's name was Hachim Bastians; her aunt, sister of her mother, was the wife of Wouter Leanderson, Old Burger Master, dwelling in the hofstau over against the brossoen in the Unicorn's Head; her Brother's name was Prince Gearsten (or Garretson) Old Burger Master."

Lion Gardiner and wife went first to London then sailed for America on the "Bachelor," a small ship, being three months in crossing; he was to take command of a Fort under Lords Say and Brooke, and on arrival was disappointed in that they did not fulfill the promises made as to manning and equipping the Fort which he built as well as he could under the cirmustances and having completed his part of the contract and defended the Fort through the Pequot War, gave up the command and purchased of the Indians an Island which they called Manchonake, and which he named Isle of Wight, but today it is known as Gardiner's Island, and has remained in possession of the family to this time. Two of the children were born at Saybrooke and one at the Island which places the time of purchase at between 1638 and 1641.

Children of Gideon and Mercy ( ) Hedges: Mercy a minor in 1784 and presumably died before 1800. Samuel, probably.

There is no direct proof that Gideon Hedges of Easthampton and Gideon Hedges of Hanover or Whippany, N. J., are identical, but it is probable.

Easthampton Church Records show that the family left Easthampton as the letter R for removed is opposite the name of Gideon, while a star opposite the name of Abigail indicates her death after removal. The names of the children baptised at Easthampton and those of the church and probate records at Morristown, N. J., agree. The partition of the estate gives the widow, Mercy, a third and a map shows a division of the rest of the land among Gideon Hedges; Sylvanus Hedges; John's children; Abigail, the wife of Samuel Miller; Naphtaly Byram; John Bostedo; Foster Morton (another record says Peter Morton) guardian for Mercy Jr. The Orphans' Court petition mentions several minor children but there is no provision for guardianship and probably these are meant as minor children of deceased children. Presumably Mercy Jr., died before 1800 as Mercy's will was dated Jan. 15, 1800 and probated Sept. 16, 1803 leaving all of her property to her brothers-in-law. Thomas and Nathan Fish. Mercy must have been much younger than either husband. That Thomas and Nathan Fish lived in this vicinity is shown by land records.

SYLVANUS[5] HEDGES, born Oct. 30, 1737; died at Exeter, Madison Co., N. Y., married Mary Ann Wheeler. Sylvanus Hedges was a soldier in the Revolution, from Morristown, N. J. He was a Deacon of the Presbyterian Church at Madison, N. J., in 1758 and a Ruling Elder in 1760 to 1765. Children of Sylvanus and Mary Ann (Wheeler) Hedges: JEMIMA[6] born Aug. 31, 1767; died Sept. 3, 1847; mar. Cornelius Genung, perhaps Isaac who married in 1794, Elizabeth Sayre, and lived in Orange Co., New York. Nathaniel, bapt. March 19, 1780 at Hanover, N. J. William, bapt. June 29, 1783 at Hanover, N. J., and probably others.

HODGE.

Of this family there is no proven record back of John Hodge born in 1742. It is believed that his parents were killed in the Mohawk Massacre in 1757 and that the children were scattered or killed, and that the family came from Connecticut. Capt. Robert Hodge bought land of Gov. Montgomery, but there is nothing to prove that he was connected with John. The Hodge Genealogy gives no clue.

JOHN HODGE, born May 19th, 1742; died Sept. 13th 1831, married April 17th, 1762. Amy Rouse, born 1742; died . Children of John and Amy (Rouse) Hodge: Lucy born 1763; died 1766. Reuben Hodge lived in Canajoharie, N. Y. He went to western New York on business 1817 and stopped for a night at a hotel a day's journey eastward from LeRoy, having with him a young kinsman, Andress Phelps; in the night the hotel burned and these men lost their lives. The story is told in verse by a neighbor and friend.

Lines composed on the Melencholly death of Mr. Rheuben Hodge and Andress Phelps.

by P. Wetmore.

Come aged men and giddy youth
Listen to me and hear the truth
Which I do now relate.

'Tis with a heavy heart I tell,
While slowly tolls the solemn knell,
Of Mr. Hodge's fate.

The leaves had left the withing bough,
Deserted was the tilling plow,
December winds did blow.

From Leroy town these men did start
And from their relatives did part,
On business these men go.

Fate's wheels do fly with rapid speed
As fortune swiftly does proceed.
These men put up for night.

Then at midnight or just before
The crackling flames are heard to roar;
Oh what a dreadfull sight.

The fire spread with rapid pace
Some fell into young Phelps' face
Which caused him for to wake.

In agony he now arose,
Himself against the boards he throws,
A vacancy to make.

He did not pass, he tries again
His body filled with burning pain
But baffled still is he.

Returning now as in a breath,
Wishes to shun approaching death
And from the flames be free.

His burning bulk the flames repel,
The boards gave way and down he fell
With horror to the ground.

Shortly he rose and crawled from thence,
With pain and anguish to a fence
And in that place was found.

I now return to Mr. Hodge,
Who up above with him did lodge,
And mark his dismal fate.

The flames in haste the house o'erspread
The roof on fire above his head,
He was in anguish great.

He now was heard to walk the floor
With quickened pace and anguish sore;
He to the Lord did pray.

To be released was his desire,
His spirit fled on steeds of fire
To worlds thats far away.

The house consumed, what do we hear,
A solemn sound now strikes mine ear
Which fills me now with dread.

O' sorrow fills my aged heart
Must I now with my Andress part'
His father sighing said.

His skin like rags around him hung,
Naked was he, scorched was his tongue,
Few words could he now speak.

Unto a house they had him borne
By friends most wretchedly forlorn;
A surgeon they then seek.

But surgeon's skill no good has done
He left the world at setting sun
In pain of body great.

Rank sorrow summoned all her train
And pitty spoke in her soft strain
The tale for to relate.

The morning dawns and silence reigns
They now remove Hodges remains
Out from his burning grave

His wife must hear from distant lands
How he is bound in death's cold hands
No mortal could him save.

His children, too, must hear the sound
May they, in wisdom's paths be found
E're morn of life be past.

Life's thread is short and quickly spun
And broken e're it is begun
Our sands do run so fast.

May wisdom guide the paths of youth
And lead them to the shrine of truth
For death is in the land.

Young Phelps is gone, a dreadfull death
Quickly was stopped his youthful breath
By an Almighty hand.

Their graves now side by side do stand
In Leroy town, a foreign land
Where rustling winds do blow.

Attentive muses raise their strain
And wake the lyre long dormant lain
With accents soft and low.

MELYN.

Cornelis Melyn was one of the most picturesque characters of his time in America. As Patroon of Staten Island he so vigorously complained of the actions of Governor (Direct General) Kieft whom he held responsible for Indian outbreaks on Staten Island, as to be tried for lese majestie, the trial beginning in 1647 and lasting for several years, ending in his vindication, after which he surrendered his rights as Patroon to Gov. Stuyvesant and on June 14, 1659 he sold his land.

MERRY.

Cornelius Merry was an Irishman and under the laws of Massachusetts could not own land for a time after his arrival; he had a grant at Northampton in 1663 and settled there but appears to have gone to Northfield where he lived 1673 to 1685; he was in King Phillip's War 1675/76 and was in the Falls Fight in 1676. It is not known where he lived after 1685, but it may be surmised that he went to be with or near children who settled elsewhere.

PIERCE.

Nothing postive is found of the ancestry of Elizabeth Pierce born 1782, who married Benjamin Bonney.

In the History of Madison Co., New York, page 417, it is found that Theophilus, Benjamin and William Pierce, of Lebanon, Conn., came in 1795 with their families to settle in the town of Hamilton. Probably she was a daughter of one of these men but records there and at Lebanon give no proof.

SCHELLINGER.

Jacobus Schellinger came to New Amsterdam from Amsterdam, Holland in 1643 and after this, in 1653 he went to Staten Island where he lived for twelve or thirteen years when he settled at Easthampton, the time being indicated by the baptism of a child at New Amsterdam in 1665 and of one at Easthampton in 1667; also a deed in which he is described as Mr. Jacobus Schellinger of Easthampton. That his son Jacobus, the one baptised at Easthampton, belongs to this family is proven by a deed from his brothers William and Abraham. Authorities do not quite agree on dates but the differences are not vital.

He was an officer in the Dutch West Indies Company. By some he is said to have gone to Rhode Island in 1664 but the best authorities say that he did not live there though most of his children did and that he died on Long Island.

WIGHTMAN.

It is said that five Wightman brothers came to America, all being Baptists; they were descended from Edward Wightman who was burned at the stake for heresy at Litchfield, Eng., in 1612. Except George and Valentine, the names are not found. Taking into account the places of residence with the dates, the following appears to be the line connecting with the Gardiner family but the proof is not clear.

George Wightman, born in England, came to America and settled in Narragansett, now North Kingston, R. I. Made Freeman May 6th, 1673, but had lived there at least ten years before that; in 1686 he was Constable.

GEORGE [1] WIGHTMAN born 1632 as in 1715 he stated that he was 83 years old; he died after 1715; married prob. about 1662/3, Elizabeth Updyke born 1644; died 1722. David Wheeler appears to have been the only one of the name living in Hanover Tp. until a later period. The Wheeler Genealogy is searched for a Mary that could have been the Mary Ann who married Sylvanus Hedges and all others are accounted for; in those days young men could not go far away for their courting and the Wheelers and the Hedges were neighbors. The Wheeler Genealogy does not give more than this Mary's name, but from names continued in her family—Jemima, Esther, Nathaniel; see Hedges and Genung—there is a reasonable conclusion that Mary Ann was the daughter of David.

ASHTON.

James and Thomas Ashton were among the Proprietors of Providence in 1639. It is probable that he was married twice as his marriage to Deliverance Throckmorton took place when he was about sixty-two years old and it is supposed that his son James was a child of the first marriage. In 1665 he went to Middletown, N. J., where he was the first Baptist minister and where he took an active part in the development of the country.

JAMES [1] ASHTON, born 1603; died 1705; married 1st date and name not known; married 2nd, by 1665, probably a short time before going to N. J., Deliverance Throckmorton, born ; died .

BAILEY.

The origin of the family is not traced; tradition says that it is Scotch; if so it may be of the Dochfour line that settled at Bristol. John Bailey, the emigrant, came from Chippenham, Co. Wilts and a search of church records there gives nothing and soon runs back into the confusion following the Reformation. John Bailey and his son John sailed from Bristol on the ship Angel Gabriel which was wrecked in a great storm at Pemaquid, now Bristol, Me., Aug. 15, 1635. The horror of this experience made him unwilling to return to England or to have his family take the voyage and in 1651 he was sentenced by the Court to return by the next ship or to have his family come; he was to have gone but died before the ship sailed. His daughter Joanna followed him to America, the wife and two daughters, and son Robert remaining in England. In 1639 he had a grant of land at Colchester, now Salisbury, and was given the sole right to fish in the Powow River provided that a certain proportion of the fish be given to the town.

The will of John Bailey mentions "my brother, John Emery, sr. of Nubery" and appoints him overseer; from this we may infer that either man may have married a sister of the other. The will mentions his son John's second son Joseph, a bequest to son Robert, 10 pounds each to the daughters in England if they come for it, or 5 shillings each if they send messengers. The codicil gives William Huntington's wife and children the house and land bought of Valentine Rowell.

to Newport, Cheshire Co., N. H., to join his brother, Jesse, and according to American Archives was there in 1790. The first settlement at Newport was made at the close of the F. and I. War 1756-1763. The survey was made by Isaac Rindge and the Charter was obtained by people from New London and Killingworth.

JOEL[7] BAILEY, born Dec. 2, 1777, died 1818; letters of administration granted Feb. 1818; married Lydia

Eggleston, born ; died Oct. 24, 1826. Children of Joel and Lydia (Eggleston) Bailey: MOSES[8] b. Aug. 21, 1805; d. March 8, 1852; m. Lucretia Van Valkenburgh. James E. b. April 21, 1807; d. . . Harriet Eliza b. Jan. 20, 1817; d. ; m. Johnson.

These children are proven by a quit claim deed at Cooperstown, N. Y., which gives all of the names except that of Moses who is identified in the family by a statement by the late Clement Bailey, son of Joel, that the two men were brothers.

The estate of Joel was administered by the wife, Lydia and her brother Davis Eggleston; after Lydia's death, Davis moved away and Moses with James Van Valkenburgh were made guardians of all the children except Amos and James E.

MOSES[8] BAILEY born Aug. 21, 1805, Otsego Co., N. Y., died March 8, 1852 Port Byron, Ill., married Jan. 4, 1828 at Clarksville, now Middlefield, N. Y., Lucretia Van Valkenburgh, born Jan. 22, 1806, Columbia Co., N. Y., died March 29, 1893 at Rock Island, Ill., int. at Cordova, Ill.

Moses Bailey was by trade a maker of gun barrels and was early associated with the Remingtons, whose first prosperity was, it is claimed, largely based on the excellence of those gun barrels; Moses was offered a partnership but preferred to establish a factory with James Van Valkenburgh; the factory burned and soon after the dam was washed away by a flood and he lost nearly all that he had. He emigrated to Indiana, (Plymouth or LaPorte) where he remained about a year; then left for Texas; at St. Louis he heard alarming reports of some troubles in Texas and received a letter from his brother Amos who had taken up land at Passmore Springs near Erie, Ill., urging him to come there, and he went up the Mississippi by boat but settled at Port Byron in 1834. This was soon after the Blackhawk war and there were Indian dances; Lucretia V. Bailey, grandmother of the compiler, described these as having the men in war paint and few clothes, giving vehement, high-kicking steps in a group with repeated ejaculations of "hudjica-jo, hudjica-jo" while the squaws in a circle around them, their blankets held tight, moved in a teetering step to the whine of "wee-ah, wee-ah." The Indians at this point gave the settlers no trouble. The pioneering was not difficult because of the ease with which supplies could be brought from St. Louis by boat.

CARR.

There is no authentic tracing back of Benjamin, William, James and George Carr. The first Carrs (Carre or Karre) are supposed to have come to England as followers of William the Conqueror. George Carr, the emigrant, to America, is said to have come in the Mayflower as a ship carpenter but it is not clear why his name does not appear on the Mayflower list as a Colonist; however that may be he came early as his wife died of cold and privation in the Plymouth Colony in the winter of 1620 or in the early spring of 1621. He settled at Ipswich in 1638; Salisbury in 1642, then at Carr's Island.

EGGLESTON.

The James Eggleston with whom this record begins was, as told by his son John in data contributed to the Biographical Review, History of Otsego Co., New York, a descendant of Bigot Eggleston of Windsor, Conn., and a careful comparison of Eggleston records indicates that he was a grandson of James and Martha (Clark) Eggleston of Simsbury. James settled at Stephentown, N. Y., and was there in 1779 as shown by a deed. He went to Montgomery Co., in 1786, was at Canajoharie in 1790 and before 1800 he leased land near what now is Westford, Otsego Co., buying it later when it came on the market. His wife and perhaps he, were members of the Methodist Church at Westville the early records of which are lost. The following data is gathered from disconnected but reliable sources. Probably James Eggleston is the same who served in the Revolution from Williamstown there being none other of the name in the locality at the time.

Philip Goss inherited the Rowlandson property which he sold in two lots, one to Hooker Osgood, Nov. 22, 1710 and one to Simon Stevens before May 5, 1727. He settled in Brookfield, Mass., in 1704 and received a grant of 60 acres. On Dec. 14, 1704 he with all or nearly all of the men of the Colony signed a petition to the Governor telling of a general condition of poverty and distress and asking to be made soldiers with pay.

He built a block house called Goss' Garrison, in 1704.

HART.

John Hart probably settled in Massachusetts first; he was an early settler at Newton, L. I., where his name appears on the records March 11, 1668 in connection with a transfer of land at Maspeth Kills. He may have been a son of Edward Hart of Flushing but the destruction of early records makes this impossible to prove. Also, he is thought to be, son of Edmund Hart, brother of Stephen Hart, of Plymouth, in 1632.

HUNT.

The first record of the Hunt family is of Adam le Hunt of Nottinghamshire, Eng., in 1225 and a Ralph le Hunt was distrained to receive knighthood about the year 1300.

Ralph Hunt called "London Ralph" came to America in 1632. It is not known where he first settled but he was an early settler at Newtown, L. I., where his name appears on a list of inhabitants in 1656 and he was made a Freeman of Connecticut in 1664. He was a son of Col. Thomas Hunt whose ancestor was a Colonel in Cromwell's army.

Colonial Service of Ralph Hunt: Lieut. in a Newtown Co., Province of New York, 1665. Surveyor of Indian Lands 1663-1664. Schoepen or Magistrate, 1663. Member of the Provincial Assembly 1673.

Crest: Figure of a mastiff, chained.

Coat of Arms: A shield of three mastiff's heads.

Motto: Faithful to the end.

RALPH [1] HUNT born ; died ; will dated Jan. 12, 1677; probated Feb. 26, 1677, married Elizabeth Jessup, daughter of Edward, born ; died before 1677 as she is not provided for in the will. Children of Ralph and Elizabeth (Jessup) Hunt: ANNE [2] b. perhaps abt. 1650/55 d. before 1685; m. Theophilus Phillips. Edward b. ; d. 1716; m. 1670 Sarah Betts. Mary prob. of age in 1677 as there is no arrangement for guardianship. Ralph b. after 1656: d. m. Susannah; settled at Maidenhead, N. J., abt. 1694. John b. after 1656; remained at Newtown. Samuel b. after 1656; died. 1719 at Maidenhead, N. J.

The will of Ralph Hunt mentions his children by name but there is nothing to prove the order of birth nor the exact ages. Edward, presumably the oldest son and of age, is to pay his three brothers their portions as they come of age, so they are under 21 in 1677.

ANN[2] HUNT born perhaps 1650/55, died before 1685, (married long enough before 1677 to have three children, who were mentioned in her father's will.) Theophilus Phillips, born ; died . Children of Theophilus and Ann (Hunt) Phillips, see Phillips.

LARISON.

A romantic story is told of Johannes Laurenson, the emigrant; it is interesting and doubtless had some foundation in truth, but there is nothing to prove whether he came to this country as a soldier of fortune, as a victim of circumstances or merely chose to come. He may have been a Danish nobleman escaped in disguise with a price on his head, but certainly not, as told, following the lost cause of the Nobles against the King and the Clergy in 1665, for the records show that he and his brother James were at Newtown, L. I., as early as 1656 and apparently landowners then.

That Johannes and James were brothers is stated in a court record of 1663 when James brought suit against Francis Doughty for payment for some pumpkins.

Johannes had a son Johannes who usually signed his name John. Johannes in his will probated in 1671 mentions his wife, son John, and daughter Abigail. In December, 1671 Mary, widow of Johannes sells all of the land with improvements to Elias Doughty and Thomas Stevenson, John giving his consent but there is no signature by Abigail nor is there any provision for her guardianship. John was married at this time, having a child, Amy, who was about two years old and this together with the fact that Abigail took no part in the settlement, and that John and Abigail had passes to sail on the "Blessing," the "Charles" or the "Phoenix" for Port Royal, Carolina in November 1671 leads to a surmise that Abigail was the wife of John. There is nothing to show that they went or returned except that in December 1672 John confirms the deed given by his mother, so it is probable that if they went to Carolina, they returned. McGrady's History of South Carolina tells of the arrival of the "Blessing" and the "Phoenix" with Dutch discontents from New York (the English being in power), of a Puritan element from Dorchester, Mass.; and French accessions after the Edict of Nantes, all desiring religious and political liberty each after his own heart but with irreconcilable differences, and of the hardships and struggles. From 1672 to 1683 there is occasional mention of John on the records but no more is known of Mary who, most likely re-married. Johannes and John were well educated for the day and signed their names to documents. C. W. Larison in his book on the Larison family pretends to no proof back of William who must have been the son of John as there is no other place for him, and he must have been the child of the first wife as his son James was born in 1695. William is known to have been with an emigration from Newtown and the Inventory of the estate of Theophilus Phillips of Maidenhead, N. J., has the item of £131-11s-2d due from William Larison March 19th, 1708/9.

James had a son Johannes who was indentured to his uncle after whose death the widow released him. He appears to have married twice; the first wife may have been a daughter of Thomas Wandell whom she predeceased, as Wandell left a small bequest to his grandson, the son of Johannes Louirison; or, the child may have been a godson, though from the bitterness between the two men a blood tie with disinheritance may be conjectured. James married 2nd, Leah Peterson before Jan. 18th, 1673 as on that date they signed a deed. Johannes emigrated to Maidenhead, now Lawrenceville, N. J., about 1694 and in 1697 he bought of the West Jersey Society 1050 acres of land on the south side of Stony Brook which he sold to Richbell Mott in 1700. In 1680 Johannes as a witness testifies that he was 29 years old, placing his birth in 1651. He had a daughter Hannah who married Jonathan Hazard of Newtown.

JOHANNES[1] LAURENSON was at Newtown, L. I., in 1656 or before. Born ; will dated Dec. 5th, 1670; inventory dated Sept. 7th, 1671, married Mary ; born ; died . Children of Johannes and Mary ( ) Larison: JOHN[2] born prob. as early as 1649; died Nov. 30th, 1693; married 1st, perh. Abigail; 2nd, 1683 Jemima (Woodhull) Halsey: 3rd, 1686 Mary, widow of David Howell. Abigail mentioned in the will of Johannes Laurenson.

JOHN[2] LARISON born prob. about 1649; died Nov. 30th, 1693; at Southampton, L. I., married 1st, 1669 or before , Abigail? born ; died ; married 2nd, May 22nd, 1683, at Southampton, Jemima (Woodhull) Halsey, widow of Daniel, born ; died ; married 3rd, Dec. 20th, 1686; Mary, widow of David Howell of Southampton, born ; died . Children of John and Abigail? ( ) Larison: Amy born 1669; died Feb. 28th, 1734 ae 64 years and 6 months; married Daniel Halsey her stepbrother. WILLIAM[3] born ; died 1749. Two sons are said to have been killed by Indians. Children of John and Jemima (Woodhull) Larison: None are recorded. Child of John and Mary ( ) Larison: Mary born ; died .

Note: It is sometimes thought that William was the son of the second marriage but as this occurred in 1683 and William's son James was born in 1695, this may be dismissed as unlikely. In 1681 Richard Woodhull presented to the court in behalf of his daughter Jemima, widow and relict of Daniel Halsey, an inventory of Daniel's estate and on the appointment of Jemima as administratrix he signed her bond.

LESTER.

Andrew Lester who lived at Gloucester, Mass., as early as 1642 is believed to be identical with Andrew Lester of New London where he had a grant of land Oct. 19, 1650, and he and Daniel Lester had patents from the King, April 23, 1663.

MARSHALL

In the family are found several traditions: one is that Conrad Marshall was a German; another is that Conrad and Chief Justice John Marshall were cousins; another is that the name was Martel. Search so far, has failed to substantiate any of it though any of it may be true.

A search of emigrants lists gives a Deitrich Marschall from Alsace, who sailed from Rotterdam on the ship Princess Augustus on Sept. 7, 1736 with a wife and several children. In this family the name Conrad is recurrent and one of the sons had a son Henry, and Conrad's will leaves a bequest to his brother's son Henry.

William [5] Marshall's first wife, Priscilla Marshall, is known to have been a distant relative and her father was a Pennsylvanian. Deitrich Marshall settled at Fritztown Pa.

Deitrich Marshall ae 29, Oath of Allegiance 1736.

Conrad Marshall came to America, sailing from Germany; as his name is found on no emigrant list he must have come as a minor. The first mention of him, found to this time, is as Overseer of Highways in Hopewell Tp. N. J., in 1767. He bought land of Andrew Hart on the top of Wissamensing Mt., in 1792. He lived at Marshall's Corners.

CONRAD [2] MARSHALL, born 1729; died Sept. 7, 1813; will dated Sept. 6th; probated Sept. 13th, married Ann Barbara ; born abt. 1734/35; died Nov. 3rd, 1801 in her 67th year. Child of Conrad and Ann Barbara ( ) Marshall: John b. Apr. 26, 1763; d. Mar. 26, 1803; m. 1st, Rebecca Hart; m. 2nd, Winifred Hoff.

James Wilson Marshall the discoverer of gold in California was a son of Philip Marshall, and a cousin of Charles Boss Marshall. So little is known of his personality, that it is proper to add here what the compiler was told of him by her father and by Mrs. Elizabeth (Reeve) Lawrence, a niece of James Wilson Marshall.

As a young man he was very fond of pleasure and of dress and he was genial. He was studious and prepared to be a teacher, to this end taking two post graduate courses—Astronomy and Geology; not inclining to any one line, he next decided on mechanics and learned to be a millwright. On a visit to Philadelphia he heard of the opportunities in the west and suddenly decided to go there, a year at Crawfordsville, Ind., where he worked as a carpenter, then on to Fort Leavenworth where he had ague and gladly braved the Indians and the plains to escape conditions there. He was of the first party to go through unmolested by Indians; he wintered in Oregon and set out to join Sutter whose achievements appealed to him, and who in turn found Marshall's versatility most useful. On finding the first nuggets which were about the size of grains of wheat, Marshall took them to Sutter who sent for the chemicals needed for testing; the secret leaked out and the gold rush began. Marshall tried to protect the Indians workiug for him and for Sutter, and to safeguard the property but each was scattered or destroyed. He was followed and persecuted because it was thought that he knew of other rich deposits of gold and he had to be taken away for safety.

In The Life and Adventures of James Wilson Marshall, (pub. 1870), George Frederic Parsons says: "Slander has often busied herself with his name and innumerable false statements have crept, from time to time, into the press. He has been accused of drunkenness. He has been announced as insane. Worthless men have on several occasions assumed his name as a bait for sympathy, and having imposed upon the charitable and been detected, their faults have been shouldered upon him. Those who know him best know that he is neither a drunkard, a lunatic or a beggar. Though an old man now, he is full of energy and life, and possesses a memory wonderful for its capacious retentiveness." Mr. Parsons knew him well as did Miss Margaret A. Kelley who has contributed a series of magazine articles concerning him. Mrs. Lawrence said that he was retiring and no doubt felt the bitterness of being unable to turn his discovery to any personal profit, but that his disposition was kindly and that he was especially in sympathy with children. Parsons gives a graphic description of disordered conditions in the early years of the gold rush, of Indian troubles and massacres.

RICH.

The Rich family is English but must be of French origin as sometimes it has been written La Riche. On old records at times, Larish. As early as 1236 Edmund Rich was Archbishop of Canterbury. Baron Richard Rich, born in London in 1498, was a poor barrister of humble family who rose to fame and became a wealthy nobleman, founding an influential family; his sons were the Earls of Warwick and Holland.

Richard Rich was born in England and appeared at Dover's Neck, N. H., in its early days, settling at Eastham on Cape Cod by 1665. He bought land at Dover's Neck of Samuel Treworgey in 1674. Philip Dimon who died in 1676 mentions him in his will as a kinsman.

SIMPSON.

In northern New Jersey at the time of the Revolution, it is told that there was a scarcity of material for 'gun wads; some of the Methodist and Baptist churches patriotically responded with a vote to "Give them Watts" and when the hymnals were used the church records were given to the cause. The Simpsons are believed to have been Baptists. Data as to the names is plentiful enough but it does not coordinate in a way to prove anything. Richard Stout and Peter Simpson were at Gravesend in 1650 and Peter is said to have had a son Robert who settled at Middletown, N. J. It is probable that members of the Simpson family joined the emigration to the neighborhood about Middletown and Freehold and this is the locality where James Stout married Catherine Simpson in 1712. Mr. Ralph Ege in Pioneers of Old Hopewell, speaks of her as a superior and fascinating woman and expresses an intention to assemble material for an article about her and her second husband, Samuel Stout, a cousin of James and only twenty years old when he married Catherine, considerably his senior and the mother of seven children, the oldest 16 years old; it proved a happy marriage and all of the children turned out well. Samuel and Catherine had one child, Samuel, born in 1730.

CATHERINE SIMPSON born ; died . She may have been the Catherine Stout who died Dec. 8, 1749 in her 58th year and was buried in the Baptist Grave Yard at Hopewell, N. J.; this would give the year of her birth, 1692, married 1712 at or near Free-

STOUT

The Stouts of New Jersey are descended from John Stout of Nottinghamshire, England, whose son Richard emigrated to America, and, at Gravesend, L. I., was one of the original settlers. He was the first English settler in New Jersey in 1648, remaining for four years when the English were driven out by the Dutch. He returned to Middletown, Monmouth Co., in 1665.

Elinor Stout was a woman of courage and ability. In their early married life Elijah Larison was injured in an explosion while attempting to open a mine on their farm; he was an invalid for life and the young wife took charge, developing the farm and particularly the orchard to the extent that it became a model and was visited by many for information.

*Note—Captain Nathan Stout gives Jemima's name as Reeder and she was his grandmother; it is impossible to find her place among the Reeders though they lived in the same neighborhood. The Reading Genealogy places her with reasonable definiteness in the Howell family (Joseph, Daniel, Thomas) of Kingwood, but with no proof. The compiler believes that she was a daughter of Timothy Titus but has no proof. Timothy Titus administered her husband's estate in association with her and as he lived some miles away and as the Howells and Reeders lived near and were reliable men of good ability, it would seem that her only reason for having Timothy Titus lay in a very near relationship; Timothy Titus had a daughter Jemima, the records giving no information beyond the name.

SUTHERLAND.

Mr. Douglas Merritt, in Sutherland Records, places Pamelia and her brothers and sisters among "Various Sutherlands." A careful search on his part and on that of the compiler failed in finding her parentage although it is known that the mother died at the home of Smith Sutherland in Otsego Co. Smith and Amos Sutherland and the Wrights went from Columbia Co., to Otsego at about 1805 when there was a considerable emigration.

THROCKMORTON.

John Throckmorton was eighth in descent from John Throckmorton, Lord of Throckmorton in 1130; the name is derived from Throckmertome or the Rockmoortown on the vale of Evesham. Warwickshire, England.

John Throckmorton [1] came to America in the ship "Lion", at the time that Roger Williams came and landed at Nantasket Beach, Feb. 1630/31. He was at Salem in 1631 and at Providence in Oct. 1638; he was made Freeman, May 16, 1631.

The Colonial Service of John Throckmorton is: Deputy to the Colonial Assembly, 1664-1665-1666-1667-1668-1670-1673-1675. One of the original Proprietors of Providence Plantations.

VAN PRINCES.

The story of Penelope Van Princes is oft told. In about 1666 a Dutch ship coming from Amsterdam was stranded on Sandy Hook; the passengers got ashore but among them was a young Dutchman who was too ill to proceed and the passengers being afraid of the Indians, would not wait, and went on to New Amsterdam; his wife would not leave them and the others promised to send aid. A party of Indians soon found them and killed the man and scalped and mangled the woman, leaving her for dead. She crawled to a hollow log where she lay for some days, subsisting on excrescenses that grew on it and keeping alive the fire left by the Indians. Two Indians found her and after some argument decided not to kill her but to cure her and sell her to the Dutch which was done but she stayed with the tribe for about a year, learned the language and became so much attached that in after years she and her second husband, Richard Stout, came across the bay for occassional visits and later Richard became a trusted man in dealing with the Indians. It is said that the name of the first husband was Lent. The Stouts settled at Middletown, going there from Gravesend.

PENELOPE[1] VAN PRINCES born at Amsterdam, about 1622; died at Middletown, N. J., in 1712; married, 1644/45, Richard Stout, born about 1620; died 1705; will proved Oct. 23rd or Dec. 23rd, 1705. Children of Richard and Penelope (Van Princes) Stout, see Stout.

VAN VALKENBURGH.

Joseph Volck, a falconer of the Crown of Holland, was presented with several thousand acres of land in the State of Lambery and with a title of Van, meaning land-owner by grant of the Legislative powers of the Republic of the United States of Holland; thus he became Van Volck and the town thus sprung up on his estate was known as Valckburg, the present population of which is about 1300.

There is a conflict of theories as to the origin of the name; one is Falconberg or Falcon Mountain or "as high as the Falcon flies"; another is that Valkenburgh means Castle in the clouds. The name always is spelled "burgh" in its early history.

JOSEPH VOLCK had a son JOSEPH.

JOSEPH VOLCK was a Stadtmeister or State Councilman of Haarlem, Holland. He had a son MABTHIUS of whom no more is known except that arms were granted to him and that he had a son Lambert who emigrated to America.

JOCHIM [3] VAN VALKENBURGH, born, bapt. April 4, 1689; died ; married 28, 1717; Elsie Klaw, born ; died .

Jochim Van Valkenburgh probably was the father of Jacobus, next in line, but it could have been his brother

Bartolomeus; each had a son Jacobus and these sons were about of an age; the conclusion that Jochem was the father rests with the possession of a deed to land given by Jochem Lambertse to Jochim and in possession of members of the family known to be of this branch, the paper coming down with others pertaining to the administration of successive estates. In either case the Van Valkenburgh ancestry would be the same.

In the fall of 1914 the compiler talked with Mrs. Lydia Oliver a woman then in her 102nd year; her mind was perfectly clear and her hearing very good. She said that she was a year-and-a-half old at the time of the death of her great grandfather, Jacobus [4], that he was between ninety and ninety-five years old and that she remembered him; she really had so remarkable a memory that this is possible; however that may be, she had the time of his death fixed in her mind in her youth, at a time so near the event that it may be taken without question. Mrs. Oliver died in the spring of 1915 after her 102nd birthday.

There were three brothers Vrooman in Albany; Jacob died in Albany as presumably did Peter; Hendrickse Meese was in 1670 living "behind Kinderhook"; the same year he hired a farm of Robert Sanders at Lansingburg and lived there six years; in 1677 he removed to Schenectady where he was killed by the French and Indians when that place was sacked and burned in 1690.

WILCOXSON.

The Wilcox or Wilcoxson family is of Saxon origin and seated at Bury St. Edmonds, Co. Suffolk, Eng., before the Norman Conquest. Sir John Dugdal mentions fifteen generations of the family before 1600, tracing back to 1200. In the reign of King Edward, Sir John Wilcox was entrusted with several important commissions against the French and had command of the cross-bow men from Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex.

William Wilcoxson, a linen weaver, came to America in the "Planter" in 1635; he was a freeman in Mass., in 1636, lived at Concord and went to Stratford, Conn., in 1639; he was 34 years old when he came to America.

The Stratford Company was organized at Wethersfield and Hartford in 1638 and among the original settlers were William Wilcoxson, wife and three small children.

All or most of the settlers were communicants of the Church of England and brought their certificates as members in good standing; those of William Beardsley, William Wilcoxson and Harvie were from the minister at St. Albans, Hertfordshire. At Stratford the settlers formed themselves into a church called Church of Christ, recognized by neighboring churches and in about 1669 all were styled Congregational Churches. Rev. Adam Blakeman had been suspended for requiring the people to kneel for the sacrament which was considered to signify worshiping the Host and, being a Roman Catholic form, to partake of idolitry.

William Wilcoxson was Representative at Hartford in 1647.

WRIGHT.

Benjamin Wright came from Bolton or Swale in the north of England and settled at Guilford, Conn., where his name is on the list in 1645. He may have been there earlier as the original list has only the heads of families. He took the oath of fidelity, May 9th, 1645 and was on the list of Freemen in 1650. Guilford allowed only members of its church to be freemen while other colonies accepted members of any approved New England church. In Nov. 1659 he was a freeman and living at Killingworth, Conn.

In 1648 he was publicly whipped at New Haven for contempt of court, having disregarded court orders in placing his tan vat where it was objectionable to his neighbors.

DEMING or DUNNING, or DAMON.

The records from the Bible of Joel and Elizabeth Bailey were obtained through the kindness of their grandson, Mr. Frank D. Bailey who remembered that Elizabeth's name was Demming. An exhaustive search failed to find her among the Demings of the locality and she may have been a visiting relative.

DAVIS.

LYDIA DAVIS born ; died after 1816; married, (Intentions date Nov. 28th, 1754, at Warren, Mass.,) Moses Rich born June 4th, 1780; died 1816; will dated April 7th, 1790; probated Mar. 7th, 1816.

The lineage of Lydia Davis presents a genealogical quagmire, there being Lydias in all of the Davis families, but the following appears to be the only consistent line and lacks only the proof that Lydia and Stephen were sister and brother; the families of Stephen Davis and Moses Rich were so closely associated for many years that a tie of blood is indicated though no proof is found.

1714; died 1738. Abigail born 1717; died ; married 1733, Joseph Woods of New Braintree.

Samuel Davis is mentioned as a newcomer at Brookfield in 1698 when he bought the Joseph Mason Estate. On April 20th, 1698 he deeded land at Northampton to Capt. Preserved Clapp and on March 26th, 1713, he deeded land at Northampton to Thomas Baker.

The estate of Samuel (Samuel, Samuel, William) was administered by his son John; an aggreement signed by Edward Ayres, John Davis and Stephen Davis authorizing John Davis to hold the entire property for the loved and aged mother, Thankful, to use for her comfort and at her death to be divided among heirs who are mentioned as being: Heirs of the late brother Benjamin, heirs of the late brother Isaac, Jemima Ayres his sister, Mary Dunham his sister, and in one of the papers Stephen is called Cuson (cousin); he seems, along with John Davis and Edward Ayres, to have represented the family of which John was the only living son and to have been cousin to most of them; as the estate was divided in 1762 it is presumed that this was the date of Thankful's death.

BENJAMIN [4] DAVIS of Warren, Mass., born 1698; died 1759/60; married Mary born ; died . Children of Benjamin and Mary ( ) Davis: Stephen born ; died ; married abt. 1764 or before, Rebecca dau. of Moses Young. Perhaps Benjamin. Probaby LYDIA [5] born ; died after 1816; married 1754, Moses Rich.

TITUS, HOWELL, REEDER.

There is no claim to a Titus ancestor other than is based on the compiler's conclusion.

James Stout 1715—1750; mar. prob. abt. 1736/7; his wife's name was Jemima and Capt. Nathan Stout's book gives her as Jemima Reeder; as she was his grandmother, this may be taken seriously, but there is no trace of her among the Reeders, and the marriage is not recorded at Amwell where the Stouts and the Reeders lived.

The Reading Genealogy places her with reasonable definiteness in the Howell family (Joseph, Daniel, Thomas) of Kingwood but a search of Kingwood records fails in finding her though a Jemima Howell of the time married a Reeder; there is a possibility of her having married a Reeder after the death of James Stout and that, having known his grandmother only as Reeder an error through oversight crept into Capt. Nathan's book.

In association with her, Timothy Titus administered the estate of James Stout; there are no papers at Trenton that show the detail of the settlement. The question as to why Jemima went so far away for this help when the Reeders and the Howells, all men of good standing and ability, were close at hand, gives a reasonable conjecture that Timothy Titus was her father. Timothy had a daughter Jemima of whom the records tell nothing further.

VASSALL.

That William Vassall belongs in this ancestry is congent on proof that Anna (White) Hayward was the daughter of Resolved White.

William Vassall lived at Scituate but his wife, Anna, was a member of the church at Roxbury because her husband was not on friendly terms with the minister at Scituate, and the children were baptised at Roxbury.

WILLIAM [1] VASSALL born ; died ; married 1st, Anna Parke born ; died Aug. 20th, 1640; married 2nd, Jan. 1st, 1642, Mary Eliot. Removed to Dorchester. Children of William Vassall: John settled in the West Indies: died there. JUDITH [2] married Resolved White. Frances married James Adams of Marshfield. Margaret married Joshua Hubbard. Mary unmarried; living at Barbadoes in 1655. William born, Jamaica, West Indies, 1678. Anna married Nicholas Ware.

Authorities mentioned under WHITE.

WHITE.

That the White family of the Mayflower belongs in this ancestry rests entirely on conclusions; a careful search has been made and all other Anna Whites that are recorded are accounted for. Anna, daughter of Resolved White was born June 5th, 1649; Anna (WHITE) Hayward—printed Howard—died May 25th, 1714 ae 64 years. Resolved White's wife was Judith and her mother was Anna; Anna (White) Hayward named a daughter Judith. In none of the White family records is found anything to show what became of this Anna nor do the records at Boston, Salem or Concord give any light. Elizabeth, daughter of Resolved White married Obadiah Wheeler of Concord July 17th, 1672, and they lived there.

If Anna belonged in this family the ancestry is:

WILLIAM [1] WHITE born ; died Feb. or March 1621; married Jan. 27th, 1612, Susannah Fuller born ; died 1680; married 2nd, Gov. Edward Winslow. Children of William and Susannah (Fuller) White.
